

It's an evolution...

At its core, all video and film is made up of frames. We take those frames and make them into something unique, experimenting with the pixels along the way. Naturally selecting the best takes, adding motion graphics, color-correcting, encoding. And then give them to you in any way that you may need them; on a DVD, a videotape, the web. See, it's an evolution... of frames and pixels.

We pledge that what goes on in front of the camera and in the edit suite is as important to us as it is to you, no matter the size of the project.
